GRAIN MARKET.

Corn futures registered yesterday ad vances of 1% cents to 2% cents a bushe' at the day's high. Trading, however, The underlying condiwas nervous. tions were builish and stimulated buy-ing and covering, but the sword of the investigation in the alleged May corner hung over the trade and naturally caused apprehension. That fear induced considerable profit taking on the bulges. but strength in oats and rye and further xport demand for wheat served to check all declines. The weakness in oreign exchange, lower cash quotations further cancellations by Eastern ship-pers and the shifting of professionals orn was due for a reaction. They pointed to the fact that the market had enjoyed a substantial advance and that lewer prices would result.

The exceedingly small car estimates yesterday, because of the switchmen's strike was a powerful influence. Some wires estimated that only twelve cars of grain would be received. Although the mettlement of the strike will mean more. settlement of the strike will mean more cars than came in yesterday, no notice-able increase in the number of cars re-ceived prior to this trouble is anticiated. Weather conditions, while unsettled, are not expected to interier with the shipments. Transportation and the Lapland, the Saxonia and the Minhe attitude of the farmers is expected to govern receipts. The sale of 1.000,000 count of private bankers brings the cited buying, as did the statement that there was a good foreign demand for all grains. Prospects of a late season thels of wheat for foreign account in-or corn also encouraged buying. Oats were active and strong, due to the unsettled weather conditions, which are delaying farm work and will prob-ably make the oats crop late. The small eccipts, owing to the strike, and the ersistent strength in the cash are factors which the trade is not overlooking.

Provisions were irregular, selling lower at the start on Hquidation credited to the packers and rallying with the grains.

an olders for subscription at $50 a share on the basis of a share for a share then held.

Based on a quotation of $160 a share for stock, at which price some transactions were made yesterday, the 100 percent. stock dividend will have a value of $50 a share. On that basis the rights to subscribe to the new stock will have an approximate value of $15 a share on the present outstanding common stock, making the entire transaction worth more than $100 a share to the plans by the stockholders.

The two proposals are pontingent, it was said yesterday, on ratification of the plans by the stockholders, but little opposition is anticipated from that source in view of the profit accruing to the stockholders, as a result of the distribution. The stock, nithough it was never paid any dividends, has been self-tong time. In the last week or two it has had a very sensational rise from a little more than $100 a share for a long time.
